

BREED CODE: ORI – ORIENTAL

GENERAL TYPE STANDARD

Oriental Shorthair cats are derived from the Siamese breed. The cat should be a beautifully balanced animal, with head, ears and neck carried on a long, svelte body, supported on fine legs and feet, with tail in proportion. The head should be wedge shaped, neither round nor pointed, and the expression should be one of alertness and intelligence. All colours/patterns of Oriental Shorthairs are comparatively darker in colour than their Siamese counterparts due to the removal of the Siamese “pointing” gene, which makes the cat self-coloured, and of a darker shade, e.g. a Sealpoint Siamese with the “pointing” gene removed becomes an Ebony.

- Head and Ears Head long and well proportioned, carried upon an elegant neck, with width between ears, narrowing in perfectly straight lines to a fine muzzle, with a straight profile and firm chin in with the upper jaw. Ears large and pricked, wide at base.
- Eyes Oriental in shape and slanting towards the nose, but with width between. No tendency to squint.
- Eye Colour Decidedly green in adults. Kittens may show a blue or yellow tinge.
- Body and Tail Medium in size, body long and svelte, legs proportionately slim, hind legs slightly higher than the front, feet small and oval, tail long and tapering. The body, legs, feet, head and tail all in proportion, giving the whole a well balanced appearance.
- Coat Very short and fine in texture, glossy and close lying.

In all broken colours the 20 points for colour are to be divided, 10 for markings, and 10 for colour

Faults which should not militate against an otherwise good exhibit:

1. Stud damage on a queen.
2. Jowls in males.
3. Tail slightly kinked at the extremity.

Faults:

1. Tabby or other markings (in non-agouti colours).
2. Dark points.
3. White hairs, except Breed NO ORI/W – Bicolour and Breed No. ORI/W/ - Harlequin.
4. Light coloured fur extending onto the neck in the agouti colours (i.e. other than in the immediate area of the lips and lower jaw).

Withhold Challenge Certificate or First Place in Kitten Classes for:

1. An obvious receding or protruding lower jaw.
2. White toe or toes (except in Foreign Whites, Oriental Whites, Bi-Colours and Harlequins).
3. Body colour which does not adhere to the standard set for the particular colour.
4. Incorrect eye colour.
5. Permanent squint in eye or eyes. (Definition of a squint: When the eyes are so placed they appear to look permanently at the nose.)
6. Any kink not at extremity of tail.
7. White Spotting: This is not to be confused with the light coloured fur in the immediate area of the lips and lower jaw on agouti patterned cats.

NOTE: Kittens frequently show tabby “ghost” markings when changing coat. This should not be held against an otherwise good exhibit.

COLOUR CHARTS

CARAMELS : Note to Judges - Colours are allowed for in a range from bluish fawn to warm beige, which will depend on the genetic base colour present (i.e.: blue, lilac or fawn). Maturity of the animal and pattern (tabby or tortie) may also affect the perceived colour.

(ORIW & ORIW/2 (Oriental Blue Eyed White) are both exhibited as ORIW for show purposes)

TORTIE

The coat may display two shades of its basic colour and may thus appear to display three or even four colours. The colours may be mingled or blotched, and Oriental. Type which should be excellent is deemed more important than distribution of colour. Barring on tail, whilst not desirable, is not to be considered a fault. A blaze is desirable.

NO:	Colour	Coat Colour	Nose Leather & Pads	Notes
ORIE	Seal Tortie	To be three colours, red, cream and black.	Plain or blotched, black and pink
ORIE/A	Blue Tortie	Blue and cream, softly intermingled to give a pastel toning.	Plain or blotched, blue and pink

ORIENTAL LYNX

Care should be taken to see that the background colour is truly indicative of the colour under which exhibits are shown.

All agouti cats have a tendency to show a light coloured fur in the immediate area of the lips and lower jaw. This is a fault if it extends onto the neck. It is likely that nose leathers, pads and eye rims may vary in colour from the Standard, but this should not militate against an otherwise good exhibit. A white tip at the end of the tail is a fault.

Kittens very often do not show their full markings and thumb prints may not be very obvious. Here again, these could develop with age. In adults the markings should be clearly defined. As the full pattern can take up to three years to develop, the ticked pattern in particular can show a "ghost" spotting, classic, or mackerel pattern in the flanks, dependent upon any other recessive pattern carried.

Oriental Lynx must show one of the four recognised Tabby Patterns, i.e. Classic, Mackerel, Spotted or Ticked (refer Main Index for full description), and a combination of any two or more is a serious fault.

ORIF/KG	Apricot Lynx	Clearly defined deep rich cream markings with a slight metallic overtone over a ground colour of paler cream including the lips and chin. Deeper shades preferred	Pink.

TORTIE LYNX

These cats usually resemble Tabbies rather than Torties and body type and tabby pattern are deemed more important than clarity of Tortie markings. A blaze is desirable. Ears mottled, but clearly thumb marked. Mottling permissible on tail, ending in a solid tip.

NO:	Colour	Coat Colour	Nose Leather & Pads	Notes
ORIF/E	Seal Tortie Lynx	Dense black markings (broken) on brown background but patched with red and/or cream over tabby pattern.	Mottled.

GOLDEN LYNX

The degree of goldening in these cats may show great variety. Some cats look the same as non-golden Oriental Lynx, while others show great contrast between the colour and ground, this of course being the Ideal. The Oriental Golden Lynx Group may be bred in all four tabby patterns – Classic, Mackerel, Spotted and Ticked.

Ground colour is warm cream to apricot, being more intense on the face and back, with a lighter shade of colour down the flanks, on the belly, and the undersides of the tail and chin, and the furnishings of the ear. Whisker pads, chin and chest light to deep cream.

Challenge withholding faults: grey undercoat

ORIP/K	Caramel	Silvery white hair tipped with bluish fawn to warm beige, a metallic sheen.	Warm beige or pink.
ORIP/EK	Caramel Dapple (Tortie)	Patches of silvery white hair tipped with bluish fawn to warm beige, a metallic sheen and patches of creamy silver hair tipped with apricot.	Pink, or pink rimmed with beige or mottled.

SMOKE

The undercoat of all Smokes is slightly lighter than the roots of the shaded hairs. Scattered white hairs and rusty or other shadings should not be severely penalised in an otherwise good kitten. The smoke effect is produced by a silvery undercoat combined with overhair that is tipped in colour with a silvery root. There is great variation in the degree of smoking in cats, and breeders should select for those with the greatest degree of silvery roots and undercoat. In repose the coat appears to be coloured, but in motion the silvery undercoat is apparent.

TORTIE SMOKE

In repose the coat may display two shades of its basic colours and may thus appear to display three or even four colours. The colours may be mingled or blotched. In all tortie varieties, type (body conformation) is deemed more important than distribution of patching.

SILVER LYNX

The degree of silvering in these cats shows great variety. Some look the same as normal Oriental Lynx, while others show extreme contrast between colour and ground. The ideal is the silver with extreme contrast. They may be bred in all four Tabby patterns – Classic, Mackerel, Spotted and Ticked. For full description of Tabby Patterns – Refer Main Index.

BI-COLOUR

Coat Colour: Patches of any one self-colour or pattern accepted in the Oriental Group, and white. Preferably one-third and not more than one-half to be white. Symmetry of design is desirable, with patches of colour on the top of the head, ears, cheeks, back, tail, legs and flanks. The random sprinkling of white hairs throughout the main colour, or coloured hairs in the white, is a serious fault.

Faults:

1. Tabby markings (in non-agouti colours).
2. Incorrect proportion of white.
3. Brindling or white hairs in the coloured patches.
4. Coloured hairs in the white.

Withhold Challenge Certificate of First Place in Kitten classes for

1. Incorrect proportion of either colour.

HARLEQUIN

Coat Colour: The Harlequin is basically a white cat with colour being restricted to the head and tail with patches or spots. A small body spot is allowable. The breed must be penalised if the colour spots are appreciable more than laid down in the Standard. The random sprinkling of white hairs throughout the colour spots or coloured hairs on the white is a serious colour fault.

Faults:

1. Tabby markings.
2. Brindling or white hairs in the coloured patches.
3. Coloured hairs in the white.

Withhold Challenge Certificate or First Place in Kitten classes for:

1. Too much colour on body.
